

STC Houston September Meeting: Power Networking for Fun and Profit

HOUSTON – More than ever in today’s tough market, who you know can be as important as what you know. Building and maintaining a strong business and personal network can be the key to achieving greater success for yourself and your company. Here’s a great opportunity to hone your networking skills and expand your sphere of influence: come to the next Society for Technical Communication (STC) Houston chapter meeting on September 14 when professional speaker Carolyn Harvill shares the secrets of Power Networking.

Creator of Living the A-Plus Life seminar, radio talk show host, and award winning storyteller, Carolyn Harvill uses experience and humor to teach effective networking for fun and profit. “Humor helps us maintain a positive attitude,” Harvill says. Her presentation helps you develop the networking skills and attitudes you need, using both humor and practical networking exercises. “Inspirational” and “Totally enjoyable and totally useful” are just two of many comments from her large list of clients who invite Harvill to return again and again.

Join Carolyn Harvill and STC Houston chapter members Tuesday, September 14, at the Hilton Houston Westchase Hotel, 9999 Westheimer Road, starting at 5:30 p.m. for informal networking and refreshments. Harvill’s presentation begins at 6:30 p.m. To reserve your place at this power networking event, go to <http://www.stc-houston.org/>.

STC Houston meets on the second Tuesday of each month, September through June. STC is the world's largest professional association for technical communicators providing unparalleled opportunities for continuing education, peer networking, and access to its job openings database. For more information about the international organization, visit <http://www.stc.org/>.
